

Incident Management and Investigation

One of the most important ways of preventing injuries in the workplace is to learn from incidents. There are also requirements to report certain incidents to safety policing authorities. If we are to prevent an incident from recurring, it is vital to understand its root cause and not just identify superficial reasons as to why an incident occurred. This training will ensure that incident investigations focus on the incident and failures in how the work is done and not on blaming individuals.

Training Outcomes:

- Carry out incident investigations
- Identify the root cause of incidents
- Focus on system failures, not blame
- Analyse existing systems
- Build alternative solutions
- Know which incidents require reporting to authorities

3 Steps to getting your Incident Management and Investigation action plan:
